For Smt. Chingangbam Tarunbala Devi, getting into entrepreneurship was incidental; and once she sensed the opportunity, it was not difficult to achieve the success. With a PGD in sericulture, she started her career as a part-time lecturer in sericulture. She used to teach students about silk worm rearing, and silk yarn extraction from silk cocoons.

During one of the practical sessions, she asked some students to make silk cloth, of which two students made silk cloth with very beautiful designs. Impressed with the design she showed the silk cloth to neighbors and friends who also liked the silk cloth and placed an order for more cloth with different designs. This gave her an idea of starting her own silk cloth business.

Initially, she started collecting silk cloth with varied designs from weavers and selling the same at her residence. As initial sales were encouraging, she started a small emporium in January 2009.

To enhance her business, knowledge and skills, she attended the Agri clinic and Agri Business Centres Scheme training programme from 28-01-2009 to 28-03-2009. As a result of the business skills acquired from the programme, she envisioned expansion in the business and started collecting silk yarn / cocoon from farmers and supplying the same to weavers for production of silk cloth. The designs for the cloth are suggested by her as per the customer requirements.

She started her venture with an investment of Rs. 20,000 and within a short span of eight months the turnover in the business has reached to Rs. 1.5 lakhs.

Presently her venture offers direct and indirect employment to about 65 weavers and farmers'. For any more information she may be Contacted on

The ACABC scheme has significantly contributed for enhancing the social and economic status of women in the society. Women through agribusiness training has become more confident, more productive, and more independent in leading their personal and professional lives.

This Institute has adopted ‘MANAGE TRAINING MODULE’ by engaging Resource persons from leading Management Institutes, (Chartered Accountants, experts from Nationalized Banks, State Departments of Agriculture and Animal Sciences, Universities, Research centers, KVIC, Organic certification, Beekeeping, sericulture). Successful Agripreneurs have been called for sharing success and failure of Agri related ventures and the intricacies of Extension consultancy services.
